SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS AND COMMUNICATION

Mission
The School of Fine Arts & Communication is a community of artists, scholars and communicators committed to developing people who will explore truth and beauty and express what it means to reflect the Imago Dei.

Vision
The vision of the School of Fine Arts & Communication is to be a vibrant, interdisciplinary community that rigorously engages, confidently leads and humbly serves society in seeking the reconciliation of all creation to the Creator.

Overview
Every discipline within the School of Fine Arts and Communication is a channel through which students can impact the world and express their faith — with words, visuals and sound. This is where students explore new ways to create, tell and distribute stories. Through our programs, many of which are nationally ranked, students are given every opportunity to become proficient and powerful storytellers. The School of Fine Arts and Communication offers bachelor’s degree programs in the following departments, as well as a master’s degree program in the department of Public Relations.

Conservatory of Music
Biola’s Conservatory of Music is a vibrant community of diverse artists. Students, faculty, graduates and friends of the conservatory collaborate on compelling projects and attend and perform in the Concert Series, Music at Noon and other live musical events. Members enjoy a lifetime of professional networking, meaningful friendships and unique opportunities as a result of their experience at the conservatory.

Additional Education Opportunities and Distinctives
- Chamber Music Ensemble, Chorale, Percussion Ensemble, Symphony Orchestra, Symphonic Winds
- Semester Concert Series
- Annual Christmas Concert

Department of Art
The Department of Art is a vibrant visual arts community that offers a professional visual arts program with a rigorous curriculum that reflects a strong liberal arts emphasis and a solid Christian worldview. Our art professors are dedicated to mentoring our diverse student body and strive to create an academic and spiritual environment where students will become thriving servant-leaders who as artists and designers understand the complexity of the world in which they live. The Department of Art is committed to training well-equipped students with the aesthetic, technical, conceptual skills and the Christian worldview needed for professional success and impact.

The Department of Art is undergoing major renovation to be completed in Fall 2020. Some of the key spaces included in the renovation plan include:
- Student Art Gallery
- 40 Senior Art Studios
- Photography Dark Room/Light Room
- Painting Studio
- Drawing Studio
- Photo Lighting Studio
- Interdisciplinary Studio
- New Media Studio
- 2 Computer Labs
- 8 Faculty Offices
- Center for Christianity, Culture, and the Arts Office
- Gallery Director Office
- Art Department Chair’s Office Suite
- Dean of Fine Arts and Communications Office Suite
- Screened Outdoor Art Yard
- Rooftop Terrace
- Outdoor Exhibition Space incorporated into a new site landscaping plan

Department of Communication Studies
The Department of Communication Studies finds its roots in the desire of Biola’s founders to train students to reach the world with the message of the gospel. Our mission is to produce committed Christian graduates who are trained in the theory and practice of communicative arts and are masters at constructing and delivering ethically written and globally relevant oral messages, using all forms of popular and religious media.

Additional Education Opportunities and Distinctives
- Theatre majors at Biola have the opportunity to participate in dramatic productions through Theatre 21. This 94-seat performing arts venue can act as a launchpad for students’ creative and professional careers, as it is the primary home of Biola’s theatre program — ranked by OnStage as one of the top 25 programs in the nation.
- Biola’s ‘Curtain Time in London’ tour allows students to travel as a group to London, England, to visit theatrical venues and participate in acting workshops.
- Communication studies students have an opportunity to join Lambda Pi Eta, a national honor society, and work on service learning projects such as an AIDS hospice program.

Department of Digital Journalism & Media
Journalism is an important calling that involves seeking truth, exposing injustice, crafting compelling stories and maintaining high ethical standards. In Biola’s digital journalism and media program, you’ll learn reporting and storytelling from experienced faculty and media professionals. At the same time, you’ll gain cross-cultural understanding and real-world journalism experience in one of the world’s largest and most influential media centers. You will learn how words, photos, video and interactive media are part of the journalism world that is shaping national and international politics, business, entertainment, sports, and ministry of all kinds.

Additional Education Opportunities and Distinctives

- The Chimes
  Biola University's student-run, award-winning news publication serving the Biola community for over 80 years is produced weekly, online and in print.

- EagleVision
  Gain hands-on broadcast news reporting experience both on campus and in the Los Angeles area. Produce content and learn production work: editing, directing, camera operating and floor directing.

- The Point
  Biola University's award-winning campus magazine produced each semester by students, for students, about college life and the world beyond.

- The Torch
  A student-run radio station featuring podcasts on a variety of compelling topics.

- Media Narrative Book Project
  Produced entirely by students in the Media Narrative course, these book projects feature cross-cultural encounters and in-depth journalism, encompassing reporting, research, writing documentary photojournalism, page and cover design and accompanying digital media.

- Study Abroad
  New York City Semester is a program with The King's College, located in downtown Manhattan. Students will be immersed in a rigorous and engaging academic experience, learning from award-winning professors who epitomize committed Christian faith along with mastery in their fields. In addition to visits from industry professionals and the vibrant faculty lectures, students will take advantage of unparalleled networking opportunities, cultural experiences, and more.

- Department of Public Relations & Strategic Communication
  The Department of Public Relations and Strategic Communication is a community of faculty, staff, and students, all committed to the goal of developing leaders who are trained to leverage influence and power in organizations in order to pursue human flourishing and cultural transformation. Our community pursues this goal through a biblically-centered public relations education focused on cultivating leaders equipped with ethical courage, strategic creativity and digital media expertise that facilitates managing communication between organizations and the public in order to build mutually beneficial relationships.

- Additional Education Opportunities and Distinctives
  - 6th Street PR
    Student work with real clients as part of a student-led, award-winning, nationally accredited public relations agency. One of only three PRSSA Affiliated Agencies on the West Coast.

Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA)

PRSSA is the foremost organization for students interested in public relations and communications. The Biola chapter is a recognized leader in the organization. Students develop leadership skills, participate in national competitions, enhance their professional expertise and connect with networks to help them thrive in public relations.

- PR Fellows
  The honors program for our undergraduate public relations program designed to facilitate advanced mentoring, foster professional development and guide future PR leaders in strategic foresight for their career ambitions. Open by invitation only to a select group of undergraduate seniors who have displayed strong academic expertise, leadership within the PR program, and a character that evidences professionalism.
